

GENUINE MYSTERY IN THICK CHUNKS

Franklin P. Slater Not Dead, but Writing Postal Cards Which State that "Dead" Boilermaker is an Italian of Same Name.

A mystery in which alleged death, mistaken identity and green ink all play an important part is yet unsolved following the report which The Freeman published Wednesday evening of the "death" of Frank P. Slater, son of Mrs. Barbara Slater of Foxhall avenue. Young Slater, who is a boilermaker by trade and employed near West Haverstraw, wrote his mother a postal card Tuesday telling her not to get frightened if she heard of a death of Frank A. Slater, as a man of that name, an Italian, was killed in West Haverstraw that day, he said.

To date no report whatever of any death of a man named Slater has come from the authorities at West Haverstraw. The information came to The Freeman in a letter signed John Crommer, and dated West Haverstraw, Sept. 4, 1916. The letter, written in green ink, said that a young boilermaker had been blown to eternity while caulking rivets on the top of the dome of a boiler; further, that "the terrible site happened at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Frank P. Slater was blown sixty feet in the air and the body blown into the river. The head was found about one hundred feet from the river and the body has not yet been found. And they are still dragging the river to find the body. Mr. Slater is 23 years old and has four sisters and three brothers and a widowed mother. Yours truly, JOHN CROMMER.

"Please publish same." Inquiry failed to elicit any information of any such accident at or near West Haverstraw. Young Slater is employed at Jones's Point, according to his family, on building gas tanks for a new factory. Inquiry at the Slater home Wednesday developed that the postal card was postmarked at the same hour in West Haverstraw as the letter containing the tidings of death, namely, Sept. 6, at 7 o'clock. The writer of the letter, "Crommer," evidently knew Frank P. Slater's family affairs as the number of survivors given is correct but he was unaware of the fact, evidently, that coincidentally Slater was writing a denial of Crommer's statement that he was dead. Under the circumstances the mistake of "Crommer" seems

The only light thrown on the impenetrable mystery is given by a statement of young Slater himself when in this city Sunday and Labor Day. He told his family then that there were two Frank Slaters on the same job, one being Frank A. Slater, an Italian, who, according to members of the family, accompanied Franklin P. Slater to Kingston last week and who has relatives in Port Ewen. These relatives have put no appearance nor have they tried to claim the mangled body.

Because of "another Frank Slater on the job" Frank P. told his family Monday that they should not worry if they read of any accident as it might be the other Frank that was injured. The extraordinary foresight contained in this warning is another of the mysteries the case presents. His postal card and the letter of "Crommer" present peculiar coincidences in the spelling of Haverstraw as "Harvestraw." Up to the hour of going to press the "body" has not been recovered from the Hudson and the head, being severed, is probably as silent as those Rockland county authorities seem to be concerning any such fatality as that described in the green ink missive received at The Freeman office.

Slater was formerly employed in the U. & D. railroad shops here.

STREET CAR STRIKE DOESN'T STOP CARS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 7.—Traction officials today said that the strike called last night by the men would speedily collapse. They based this claim on the fact that the motormen and signal men on the underground and "L" lines had remained loyal to the employers.

If these skilled men stick, this fact in itself constitutes a victory for the company, the officials say. The strike leaders express confidence, however, in their final victory.

Some disorder marked the early hours of the strike. A few ticket sellers were dragged from their posts and an elevated train was bombarded with bricks at 151st street and Eighth avenue. The missiles were hurled from a tenement building that parallels the track at that point.

To protect the loyal motormen wire cages so constructed as to ward off all missiles but bullets were placed in each motor car and behind these barriers the motormen proceeded with their work.

Reporters for the International News Service investigated the situation on the various lines and found these conditions prevailing:

1.—On the subway all trains were running virtually on schedule time during the early morning "rush" hour.

2.—On the "L" lines conditions were practically the same. In some instances the crews consisted in part of strikebreakers, but all were in uniforms.

3.—No attempt was made to run surface cars of the New York Railways Company between midnight and 6 a. m. At the latter hour, however, cars were sent out from the barns and General Manager Hedley claimed that practically normal services would be furnished during the day.

4.—Five thousand policemen, practically half of the city's force, were detailed to strike duty. An officer was stationed on every platform of the subway and elevated lines.

Before the strike was twelve hours old the carmen's leaders declare that a sympathetic strike would be called, if necessary, among the longshoremen who handle fuel for the Interborough power houses. Such action would prove serious to the company, but President Theodore P. Shonts asserted he was prepared for any such emergency.

Estimates of the number of men on strike differed widely. The union leaders claimed that half of the Interborough employees were members of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees and would obey the strike order, but the traction officials asserted that not more than 2,000 of the 11,000 employees had joined the union.

General Manager Hedley declared that 75 per cent. of the men would abide by the individual contracts which they signed and which the company refused to abrogate; this action resulting in the strike call.

Police Inspector Cohen, who had charge of the police on strike duty reported during the forenoon that normal service was being maintained on the subway and "L," and that fully thirty per cent. of the surface cars were running.

The power house, 21 sub-stations and 23 car barns of the roads were under police guard and during the first 12 hours of the strike no disorder occurred there.

Inspector Cohen announced that 9,100 policemen were held on reserve. The police department established an automobile patrol of the city.

CIVIL WAR VET CHOKED HIS WIFE

He Also Threw Pail of Water Over Her, Because She Objected to His Using Milk Pail to Carry Beer to Three Days in Jail.

Andrew J. Sutton, 70 years old, a veteran of the Civil War, was arrested on Wednesday afternoon by Policeman Shadler on the complaint of Mrs. Sutton, who said that her husband choked her and threw a pail of water over her.

This morning Mr. Sutton, who looked hale and hearty despite his advanced age, was arraigned before Recorder Lang. His wife appeared in court to press the charge. She walked with a decided limp, and said her husband had injured her hip in the fracas. Her story of the affair was that her husband, who runs a shoemaking shop on Wilbur avenue, near Greenkill avenue, came to the house that afternoon to get a pail to carry some beer in. She had only just purchased a new pail to get milk in. This pail filled with water stood in the cellar. Mr. Sutton went down and got the pail, and as he was leaving the house with it she stopped him and told him to leave the pail at the house as she did not care to have her milk as used to carry beer. She said that her husband threw the water in the pail over her and then grasped her by the throat. He also cursed and swore at her. She said her husband was drunk and that to protect herself she had called up police headquarters and Officer Shadler had come over and arrested her husband.

Mr. Sutton said that he was not drunk as he had only had a few beers that day. He said that a friend had called to see him at the shop and he went home to get a pail to get some beer in. The milk pail was the only one he could find. He confessed that he had thrown a little water over his wife, but denied that he had choked her or thrown her down. It would not hurt the milk pail, he said, to put beer in it, as it could be washed out.

Mr. Sutton said he had never struck his wife.

Mrs. Sutton said that a good many years ago when the children were young he had come home and thrown a tea kettle at her and had driven her outdoors while he put a drunken bum in her bed. Since then he had never struck her until yesterday.

Recorder Lang sentenced Mr. Sutton to three days in jail, and warned him that the next time he would send him to the penitentiary.

The Suttons have nine children, all grown up. They have been married over fifty years.

Colley Was Drunk.

John Colley was arrested on Wednesday evening as he was so drunk that he was unable to care for himself. The arrest was made by Policeman Connolly. This morning Recorder Lang discharged Colley. Colley had a badly cut ear caused by falling.

HE WAS BROKE SO BORROWED BICYCLE

Mr. Jones of Wappingers Falls Arrested for Stealing Mr. Allen's Bicycle—Also Just Landed it to Get Home.

James Jones, colored, of Wappingers Falls, was arrested in that place on Wednesday at the request of the local authorities, and was later brought to Kingston by Sergeant Hanley. He was accused of stealing a bicycle from Paul Allen, also colored, of this city.

This morning Mr. Jones was arraigned before Recorder Lang, and pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Allen who was in court to press the charge said the other day he had left the bicycle outside a saloon on Chambers street while he went in to get a drink. When he came out the bicycle was gone, and he was told Mr. Jones had taken it, and so he had sworn out a warrant for Mr. Jones's arrest.

On the other hand Mr. Jones said he was in the saloon when Mr. Allen came in and as he was broke and wanted to get home, and did not like to walk he said he had told Paul he was going to borrow the bike and Paul had told him to go ahead. He said that when he had got home he had made arrangements to send the bike back to Kingston.

Sergeant Hanley corroborated Mr. Jones's story about trying to send the wheel back to Kingston, and said that at the time Mr. Jones was arrested he had made arrangements to ship the wheel back.

As the wheel had not been received this morning Recorder Lang told Mr. Jones to await the arrival of the wheel. When the wheel is received Mr. Jones will be discharged.

GUARDSMEN OUT OF FEDERAL SERVICE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 7.—The first step toward gradual withdrawal of the militia from federal service was taken today when Secretary of War Baker ordered all militiamen so far withdrawn from the border to be discharged from the federal service. The 14th New York Infantry will, however, be temporarily detained in the state mobilization camp because of a fear that some of them may be infected with para-typoid, prevalent among New York militiamen on the border.

The militia organizations, as soon as mustered out of the federal service, resume their status as state troops, and are expected to be demobilized immediately by the state authorities.

Company M Notes.

Company M will assemble at the armory this evening for drill and instructions. This will be the first time the return of the Tenth Infantry from Camp Whitman on August 8.

Lieutenant Dittus, who is in command of the company, expects every member of his command, who has not received his discharge since the return of the company, to be in attendance this evening.

Since discarding the uniform and equipment on August 8 the company employees have renovated all the company property, which means that the men will appear on the drill shed this evening in clothing which is serviceable.

It is expected that those members of Company M from nearby towns who enlisted after the company was called forth, will eventually ask for their discharge, which necessitates more recruiting and it is hoped by the company officers that the young men of this city who are available for military duty will join Company M and fill the ranks.

Mower Was Discharged.

This morning Recorder Lang discharged William Mower, colored, of Martin's Lane, who was charged with stealing $8 from his sister, Mrs. Minnie Anderson. The recorder held there was not evidence enough to hold Mower on the charge.

JEALOUSY CAUSED MRS. HICKS TO SHOOT

The condition of Floyd Hicks, who was shot by his wife at their home at New Salem Wednesday morning, is not regarded as critical at the Kingston City Hospital, where he was removed for treatment Wednesday afternoon, and unless complications develop it is entirely probable that he will recover soon.

Hicks's attentions to Lottie Short of New Salem was the cause of Mrs. Hicks's jealousy which resulted in the shooting. Lottie is a daughter of John Banks and a granddaughter of the late "Case" Banks.

Mrs. Hicks believed her husband should be faithful to her, and when she remonstrated with him he was ready to quarrel. They quarreled frequently over Lottie Short, especially after Hicks began to spend his evenings away from home. Being left alone made Mrs. Hicks extremely nervous, and possessing a naturally high-strung temperament she spent most of her time in worrying.

It was in order to secure some means of protection that she inquired among the neighbors a number of months ago for a revolver and finally borrowed a .22 calibre revolver from Aaron Lane. She felt safer with the revolver in the house, but would have preferred the protection of her husband. When she told him of that fact, however, he quarreled.

Mrs. Hicks, according to neighbors, was a hard working woman who used every effort to keep the household together. For some time Hicks has not worked steadily, and in order to keep up his end with his companions he found it necessary to sell different articles of household furniture to get money.

When he told his wife Wednesday morning that he intended to sell the stove and to come to Kingston, she objected and they quarreled again. Hicks was in the bed room preparing himself for his Kingston trip when Mrs. Hicks procured the revolver and standing in the kitchen, shot him. The bullet entered his left side, above and forward of the thigh. He ran from the house, and after a few minutes she went after him. She returned the revolver to Mr. Lane and then helped Hicks home and telephoned Dr. Ross of Port Ewen.

News of the shooting was not telephoned to the authorities by anyone in New Salem, who apparently regarded the affair as a family matter. It was one o'clock in the afternoon that the news reached Port Ewen and was telephoned to District Attorney Shultz and Under Sheriff Hornbeck, who went to New Salem and placed Mrs. Hicks under arrest. She was brought to jail and will be held pending the outcome of her husband's condition.

GALA DAY AT HIGH WOODS.

Labor Day Fair at Church a Dazzling Success.

High Woods, Sept. 7.—The High Woods Reformed Church fair, held on the church grounds Labor Day, proved to be not only a repetition of the glorious good times held annually on that day, but was even greater than the convivial times of the past. Early in the afternoon the crowd was wending its way toward the ground in anticipation of viewing the noted parade, which was headed by the Mt. Marion Band, which played very creditably. In the long line of procession were the J. O. U. A. M. horseback riders. Several floats following were a novel feature. There were the suffragette float, liberty float, float of the village gossips, period of 1790, business float, the children's float, "Busy Bees," and farmers' floats and the vegetable peddler, who was an ardent pursuer of his business but who looked and acted much like Charlie Chaplin, and the large Mitchell car, which showed wonderful seating capacity as well as a beauty in looks. Last but not least was the "Bug-town Band," which created much laughter with their wonderful (?) music and comic costumes, among them being Sis Hopkins. The couple looking for High Woods must not be forgotten, as they were the clowns of the parade. Those who were so unfortunate as to arrive too late to view the parade were very disappointed, especially after hearing the commendatory remarks of the fortunate ones. Amusement was provided for the entire afternoon and greater part of the evening. Following the parade were the races, which consisted of the 50 yard dash for girls, sack race, broad jump, potato race, pie eating contest and several others. At the conclusion of the races the Rev. W. Seiple, in a few words introduced the speaker of the afternoon, the Hon. George Kaufman, who delivered a very interesting address. Mr. Kaufman said he supposed many would be surprised to know he was acquainted with our pastor, but he told a humorous incident of his first meeting Mr. Seiple shortly after Mr. Seiple's return from his work as a missionary in Africa. After several local remarks Mr. Kaufman centered his address on the revision of the constitution and he showed very plainly the necessity of such an act if we as taxpayers would know to what use our money is placed. His address was commendable. An art gallery was on exhibit and many enjoyed a hearty laugh at the witicism displayed therein. There was an exhibit: Sweet sixteen, a tearful subject, Indian on the scent, view of the old mill, a light of other days, a live lobster, and over two dozen others. A beautiful supper was served in a praiseworthy manner by the ladies. Ice cream, small beer, cracker jack, watermelon, candies and other "goodies" were for sale on the grounds. In one of the booths many fancy articles were for sale and this booth was well patronized by the ladies. Much praise is due our pastor, Rev. W. Seiple, for his interest and active part in making our fair a success. During the evening two short comic sketches were given. Owing much to the perfect weather condition several hundred people were in attendance and the sum realized will help wonderfully to swell the church treasury.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1395—A Unique and Comfortable House Apron.

The body and sleeve in one idea has been carried out in garments of every sort, hence the busy sewer and home dressmaker will welcome this mode in an apron that is not only simple but practical in that it covers most all of the dress worn underneath and is easy to make because of few seams. The design is suitable for percale, alpaca, lawn, gingham, seersucker or chambray. The free edges could be scalloped and embroidered. Blue and white checked gingham, with bandings of white, would be neat and would launder well. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: Small, medium and large. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for a medium size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

I do not think there is any other quality so essential to success of any kind, as the quality of perseverance. It overcomes almost everything, even nature.—John D. Rockefeller.

MORE ABOUT FRUITS.

You read occasionally how one tires of serving the fresh fruit, such as berries, peaches, pears and melons, but if the great number of people could voice their opinion in that regard they would say fresh fruit is always acceptable and only wish the season for each was longer.

The everbearing strawberry is one of the fruits that is justly flavored, for we all agree that "God might have made a better berry," but he surely never did. For those who do tire of sugared fresh fruit of any kind the following recipes will be helpful.

Peach Delight.—Pare, cut in halves and remove the stones from a dozen ripe peaches, reserving a few of the pits. Boil the pits in half a cupful of water for 15 minutes and strain. Mix together a half cupful of sugar and a tablespoonful of flour; butter a baking dish and put in a layer of peaches, sprinkle with the sugar and dot with bits of butter; cover with another layer of peaches until all are used; pour over the water in which the pits were boiled and cover with a rich crust and bake. Make several openings for the steam to escape. Serve with cream.

Peach Compote.—Scald two cupfuls of milk in a double boiler and add one-half a cupful of farina gradually, while stirring constantly. When the mixture thickens, add a fourth of a cupful of sugar and a half teaspoonful of salt and cook for 20 minutes; then add the whites of two eggs, beaten, and pour in a buttered dish. Remove the skins from six peaches, put into a saucepan with six tablespoonfuls of sugar and four of water, cover and cook slowly until the fruit is soft. Cut the farina in squares and on each place a peach and pour peach sauce over all to serve.

Peach Sauce.—Mix a half a tablespoonful of cornstarch with one tablespoonful of water. Add to the peach syrup remaining in the saucepan; boil two minutes, then pour slowly, stirring constantly over the yolks of two eggs beaten until thick. Add two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice and a few grains of salt.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY D. OF A. COUNCIL

In the account given of the meetings of the Daughters of America being held in Pythian Hall this week, in Wednesday evening's Freeman, Colonial Council No. 43, represented by Miss Ollie Havens and Mrs. Ellis Skerington and Hudson Valley Council, No. 76, represented by Hiram De Groat, were unfortunately omitted.

At the executive session held on Wednesday afternoon, the reports of officers for the past year were given. These reports were very encouraging, showing among other things an increase in the finances of the organization and a large increase in membership.

This morning the election of officers took place, the voting being spirited owing to the fact that the nominating committee reported several nominees for some of the offices. The place of meeting for next year was also decided upon, and the twenty-first annual session of the state council of the Daughters of America will be held in 1917 at Buffalo.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

National representatives, Dr. L. W. Howe, Victory Council, No. 16, New York city; Mrs. Nettie M. Reid, Manhattan Council, No. 17, New York city.

State Councilor, Mrs. Grace Furman, Welcome Council, No. 20, Tottenville, N. Y.

Asso. State Councilor, Mrs. Minnie Taylor, Hope Council, New York city.

State Vice-Councilor, Mrs. Anna Sammon, Puritan Council, No. 20, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Asso. State Vice-Councilor, Mrs. Addie Wheeler, Olympic Council, No. 14, Middletown, N. Y.

S. C. Secretary, Mrs. M. Ella Yeaple, Pioneer Council, No. 1, Syracuse, N. Y.

S. C. Treasurer, Frederick E. Parker, White Plains Council, No. 57, White Plains, N. Y.

S. C. Conductor, Mrs. Bella B. Herron, Golden Link Council, No. 42, New York city.

S. C. Warden, Mrs. Millie Farquhar, Herkimer Council, No. 33, Schenectady.

S. C. Inside Sentinel, Miss Grace Cavanaugh, Erie-Calden Council, No. 59, Buffalo.

S. C. Outside Sentinel, Mrs. Emma Bloom, Brooklyn Council, No. 23, Brooklyn, N. Y.

At the close of the state council this afternoon, between sixty and seventy members of the Daughters of America enjoyed the auto trip around the Ashokan reservoir, which was arranged for them by Secretary Canfield of the Chamber of Commerce.

Much of the above information was furnished The Freeman by Daniel A. Rahling, of Star of Liberty Council No. 75, press representative at the meeting.

KIDNAPPING WAS A FAMILY AFFAIR

An 8 year old girl by the name of Rosenwasser was reported kidnapped from the Chieftain Hotel near Big Indian this morning shortly after 8 o'clock and the police and county officials of two counties were led a merry chase before the kidnappers were rounded up at Tannersville.

Early in the morning an automobile containing five men drove up to the Chieftain Hotel, which is on the road from Pine Hill to Big Indian, and picked up the young girl. The matter was telephoned to Sheriff Shultis, who immediately notified Sergeant Murray and Policeman Fout was sent out with a description of the party and every policeman in the city and the special quarantine police were notified and had the party made an attempt to pass through the city they would certainly have struck a snag in the way of the police. The police at Catskill, Saugerties and Ellenville were warned to keep a lookout for the machine and the sheriff of Greene county notified to be on the alert.

Within two hours of the time of the warning the machine had been located at Tannersville and the matter straightened out. The men, who were thought to have been kidnapping the girl, proved to be parties who had been instructed by the girl's father to carry her away. They were not held by the authorities.

It appears that the Rosenwassers have had trouble and at present there are divorce proceedings going on. The couple do not live together and until a few days ago the father had the girl. Several days ago the mother came to the place where they were stopping and took the child, who has since been living with the mother. The attempt at kidnapping today was an attempt by the father to again secure the custody of the child by the same means as he had lost her a few days ago. At first Mrs. Rosenwasser claimed not to have any knowledge as to who the parties were who had taken the child.

WARSHIP FIGHTING TOPS.

They Are Now Mainly Used For Sentry and Signaling Work.

Lord Nelson was killed by a musket ball fired from the crow's nest of his French antagonist. Because of this fighting tops came into existence and being developed to keep pace with other parts of naval construction, continue to be a traditional feature of the world's navies.

A century ago, when fighting men—marines, boarding parties, gun crews—crowded the upper decks of a warship, a sharpshooter posted aloft picked off many a man. But a big battleship in action today shows not a mark to the man in the fighting top.

In the days when it still remained possible for boatloads of armed men to swarm up the sides and board a fighting ship plunging shots were dropped from the fighting top. But with great steel walls overhanging the waves and never an accommodation ladder swung out for their welcome it is impossible for uninvited guests to set foot on the modern deck.

The captain of the fighting top is usually in control of flag, semaphore and heliograph signaling, leaving the wireless to an invisible operator interned somewhere in the ship's vitals. He is the sentry against small inquisitive craft and may enforce his orders by the rattle of a light quick firer.

He has the outlook, reports and questions passing ships and has virtues as a detective against spies. His functions, however, are limited. He is not high enough placed to see the submarine creeping along a score of feet beneath the surface or to note its wake of broken water.

The fighting top is in big cruisers quite a massive affair and no longer the tiny breastwork behind which the picked riflemen of the ancients knelt. A duplicate set of range finders is usually kept there and used to check off the work of the experts in the fire control tower. There are light quick firers and machine guns, possibly also a high angle gun or two for use against air craft.—Pearson's.

Original Home of Welshmen.

Jutland was probably the original home of our Kymric ancestors, as well as (at a later period) of some so-called Saxon invaders. It was peopled in classical times by the Cimbric, identified by ethnologists with the Cymry, or modern Welshmen. The Germans magnanimously declined to annex Jutland with Schleswig-Holstein. It was then considered a worthless waste of moors, sand dunes and marshes. But the industrious Danes have transformed what one English traveler styled "a forsaken wilderness" into the most prosperous pastoral countries of western Europe.—Westminster Gazette.

Bee's Double Stomach.

The bee has two distinct stomachs. In the first it stores away the honey it so industriously gathers up from the flowers until such time as it is ready to yield it up, while the other stomach is used simply and solely for digestion purposes. Thus the food and the honey are kept apart. When the bee returns to the hive and is ready to deposit the honey it has gathered it contracts the muscles of the stomach, by which act the honey is ejected through the mouth. As to bee food, it is various in kind, consisting largely of the honey it so patiently makes for others.

No "Poor Land."

"That land of yours was mighty poor when you bought it," a friend of ours remarked to the wide awake owner of a beautiful farm we passed the other day, whereupon the owner delivered himself of a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptance—or mightily nearly so. "You're mistaken," he said. "There's not any poor land when you manage it right." It is a true rule that "there is more in the man than there is in the land."—Progressive Farmer.

Superstitions of Royalty.

Cæsar, Napoleon, Bismarck and others were not above the superstition of "lucky" and "unlucky" days. Thursday was the "unlucky" day of Henry VIII, of his son Edward and of his daughters, Mary and Elizabeth. It is strange that they should have died upon this day.

As Regards Vanity.

"All is vanity. At least so says the philosopher." "I don't know about that," chimed in the Plunkville sage, "but there is enough of it to keep the drug stores doing a good business in complexion contraptions."—Exchange.

HER FALL TAILLEUR.

What Autumn is Already Promising For Style.

A PROUD MOMENT.

Autumn suits are clinging to fullness indeed. This one takes such a skirt and emphasizes it in the coat skirt as well. The fabric is a dark brick gaberdine, the underarm fullness being strapped down in a belt effect. Self buttons close it, and a seal cape collar matches the black velvet trim of the smart sailor.

FOR HOUSEHOLD PACKING.

Autumn Brings Its Bugbear of Pulling Up Stakes.

When one must move, begin with the small, out of sight tasks that will not render the house untidy and uncomfortable long before leaving it. A little thought and a look around the house will disclose many of the belongings that are not in general use—for instance, stuff in the pantry, in the storeroom, superabundant grocery supplies, temporarily discarded clothing, superfluous ornaments, company porcelain and glassware, books, music and a thousand other things all of which can be dislodged without destroying the appearance of the house while those abiding in the same will not be the wiser for it.

Dispose of unnecessary possessions that some one else may be glad to make use of; then pack clothing not in use into boxes and mark the contents on each box. Books, pictures and ornaments are best packed in rather small boxes that are easy to handle. Have carpets, rugs and matting cleaned, rolled and tied.

For packing kitchen utensils, jars of fruit, etc., tubs are best, for they have handles. A pot or kettle in the bottom might have several jars placed in it with bits of paper, say or smaller articles, like knives and forks, to hold them steady, but be careful not to have anything to extend higher than the sides of the tub.

Barrels are best for the fine china and glass ware. When packing breakables, remember that every article must be prepared so that none of its surface is left exposed to pressure without support. Stuff all hollow articles as full as possible, surround all handles, stems, etc., by padding so thick that the article becomes, as nearly as possible, a solid ball. Cups and glasses should not be slipped inside each other unless well covered with padding. Plates and saucers may be made in a pile with stuffing between and the whole made solid by bands of muslin wound round them. Excelsior, hay and newspapers are all good packing material, but often kitchen towels, holders, underwear, etc., may be used to steady things and get themselves transported at the same time.

The Frightened Woman.

You are, let us say, a capable stenographer or a teacher. If through any untoward circumstances you should be bereft of one of the facilities necessary to your vocation, what would you do? Such things do happen, you know, and wise is the woman who cultivates a hobby or a vocation that employs other faculties than the ones she uses daily. If you know nothing else but teaching and should suddenly lose your hearing you would be stranded on the island of the helpless. If your daily work is of the manual sort, cultivate a hobby for something that requires mental effort. If your mental faculties are in use daily, give them a rest by doing some sort of manual work. Not only will you feel fresher in doing your own work, but you will have taken the first step in preparing yourself for any contingency that the future may hold.

Two Trespassers

One of Them Seemed Inclined to Commit Burglary

By ETHEL HOLMES

To women flowers are irresistible. Men sometimes love flowers, but it is questionable if any man ever felt toward them as a woman may feel. To a man flowers may be beautiful; to a woman they may be companions. She may tell them what lies nearest to her heart, and she will derive sympathy from them.

Effie Tidale was one of those girls to whom flowers thus appeal. In the spring she would watch for the first wild flowers and take long walks in the country to gather them. She would have cultivated flowers had there been any ground for the purpose about her home. Living in a city, she was obliged to go elsewhere for her favorites.

One day toward the close of the summer, when the flowers that are cultivated in the open were fast shedding their petals, Effie concluded to take one of her long walks. If she could not find flowers she might at least enjoy a beautiful view she had often looked upon several miles from the town. It was a good day for walking, the air coming out of the northwest and laden with the first crispness of autumn. She stepped out briskly, drinking in the beauties of natural scenery as only one can who has been endowed with the gift of such appreciation. When she came to the view she sought she sat on a stone and feasted her eyes upon it, her whole being refreshed with it as if she had drunk some delicious beverage. She was looking from an eminence toward a gap between two ranges of hills or, more properly, mountains. In places the foliage had begun to lose its deep summer green. Here and there a light smoke from some house curled up against the landscape. Over all the afternoon sun spread a golden glow.

When Effie had feasted her eyes for some time she arose for her return, which she chose to make by another route. At the foot of the declivity beneath her the road turned and led into another which would take her back home. She descended from her perch, her eyes lingering upon the view before her as she walked, passed around the bend and ascended another rise in the ground. On this elevation was a country place. The awnings to protect the windows and the porch from the sun were still in their places; wicker chairs and hammocks had not been taken in. The gate was open. A gravel walk led up to the house and a conservatory beside it. Most of the plants had been removed from their beds to their glass cases. The open gate and the wicker chairs were inviting. Effie was drawn by the sight of verdure under the transparent house to go in and inhale that delicious odor so enjoyable to lovers of plants. But dare she? That was a question she alone could decide.

She looked longingly for some time into the inclosure, expecting to see some one moving about. Despite the appearance of occupancy, no one appeared. The place had surely not been closed for the coming winter or the wicker furniture would have been removed. If sure the occupants had gone away, Effie thought she would venture in; if not, she would refrain.

While she was peering wistfully she heard a step and a young man in hunting costume and with a gun on his shoulder approached. Effie wondered if he would know whether the coast was clear.

"Can you tell me," she asked, "whether the family living in that house are there now?"

"Why do you wish to know?" asked the young man.

"Because—because—well, I would like to go in and look about—the conservatory."

"You don't mean that you are afraid to do so?" the huntsman interrupted.

"It isn't that. If the family were not there it wouldn't be so much like trespassing."

"But it would be trespassing all the same, wouldn't it?"

"I don't know. There would be no one there to be offended."

"Well, such being the case, suppose we go in and have a look."

"I will if there's no one except the caretaker."

"There isn't. The occupants went to the city yesterday, leaving the butler to close up. Come! Let's go in and make ourselves at home."

Effie shrank back. "I only wish to see the plants in the conservatory," she said. "I don't know if I would be allowed there."

"I'll be allowed there," was the reply, "and if any one attempts to put me out he'll have to fight for the privilege."

The timid girl looked with admiration and envy on this fearless man who dare invade another's premises and followed him meekly into the grounds. She felt somewhat anxious, since he had a gun, lest he might shoot some one. But when he reached the house he deposited the weapon, together with his other hunting paraphernalia, on the porch, then continued his way toward the conservatory. The door stood open and, deferentially standing aside for Effie to pass in, he followed her. She stood inside, looking around her admiringly.

"How different the air in here from outside!" she said.

"Kind of moldy; something like the inside of a tomb."

"Not at all like a tomb. It's a home for living plants. The odor is their breath."

She stepped up to some flowers that were fading and inhaled their perfume.

"I love flowers. Don't you?" she asked.

"I did once, but after attending a succession of funerals I have come to dislike them."

"What a pity! They seem like beloved friends to me. They talk to me."

"I've heard girls say that before. I wonder what it means. What do they say to you?"

"All sorts of nice things."

He led the way to a bank of chrysanthemums and said, addressing them: "Hello, Santy! How are you feeling today?"

After pretending to listen to the reply he asked Effie if she knew what it was.

"What was it?" she asked.

"Santy says that I have a very nice girl with me, but I'm doing very wrong in leading her to trespass on other persons' property."

Effie looked into the situation, and she looked anxiously toward the door.

"Don't be frightened," said the young man, then addressing the flower: "Santy, just you tell whoever is in charge of this place that I can throw stones even if I do live in a glass house."

He said this with a pretense of valor that made Effie wonder all the more, though she was a bit frightened at the prospect of a battle with the butler.

"Santy's talking to me again," said the poacher. "He says: 'Take all the flowers you want and give them to the little girl with you. She's just the daintiest, prettiest creature that has ever been in this conservatory. Don't you see all the flowers bowing their heads before her? Look at that aster over there. He's dying of envy of you!'"

This sounded very pleasant to Effie, and she blushed a little.

"Which one of you flowers," continued the young man, "could put on a tin like that? The best any of you could do would be like the paint on a red wagon in comparison. All you're fit for is to decorate her."

With this he began to gather such flowers as were in bloom and turn them over to Effie.

"Oh, don't!" she cried. "You mustn't! That's robbery!"

"I love robbery. I think I would like to have been a burglar. By the bye, suppose we break into the house."

He said this so seriously that Effie was not sure but that he meant it. At any rate, she caught her breath.

When he had loaded her with flowers he said:

"Come! let's see what we can find elsewhere. If I meet any one I'll make him set up something to eat."

Trying Effie to go with him, he left the conservatory and, ascending the porch, rang the bell. The summons was answered by a middle aged serving woman.

"Is there anything left in the larder?" asked the burglar.

"There's some crackers and cheese, sir, and a part of a cake."

"Bring them out and make a pitcher of fruit punch."

Effie's mind was so imbued with the belief that her companion was a trespasser that it did not occur to her that he had any right whatever to give such an order. Her imagination helped her to hear this order given in a commanding tone. Instead of waiting for the refreshment she took to flight. Laughing, the young man ran after her.

"Hold on," he said, "and I'll explain. I live here. My mother and sisters have gone to town. I remained for some shooting. Forgive me for trespassing upon you. You looked so wistfully innocent when I saw you peering in at the gate that I couldn't help it. Won't you take a bite with me on the porch? The butler's wife will wait on us."

Effie had no mind to accept such an invitation, though she consented to keep the flowers. Her entertainer offered to take her home in his car, but she declined this offer too. Bidding him good day, she set off to walk home.

Presently she heard the sound of an auto behind her, and along came the trespasser. He drove the car beside her and finally convinced her that she might as well ride with a strange man as walk while he rode beside her.

When a man determines to get a woman for himself his superior dominant power is a great advantage to him. This man had impressed this girl with the fact that he possessed a daring which was foreign to herself, and, though he had admitted that he had been chasing her, the impression did not fade. He had followed her in his auto and rendered it absurd for her to be walking while she might be riding. Besides, she would much rather ride with an agreeable young man than walk alone.

Thus far it was all resistance on her part. Now they came to a part of the road where it forked. One fork led to her home directly, the other by a roundabout way. The driver turned into the latter road. Effie made no move to induce him to take the other. Perhaps she delayed till too late. An auto is a hard vehicle to turn. It requires much backing. When they reached her home they had ridden many miles.

During the following winter a sister of Effie's entertainer called on her, and she was the recipient of flowers from the conservatory on which she had trespassed.

Cream Used by Romans.

A soft yellowish-brown mass from an ancient Roman vase discovered at Tivoli has been identified as toilet cream by M. L. Reutter, a French chemist. A trace of stearic and turpentine odor remained, and examination showed it to be a mixture of beeswax and fat, with the addition of a little stearic and oil of turpentine, and the presence of tartrates suggested that it had been macerated with wine. A yellow color imparted to the skin was attributed to henna.

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 7, 1916.

With the eight hour basis of pay assured for the railroad brotherhoods without the agony of arbitration, it is an odd fact that there should be lacking any enthusiastic and widespread endorsement from press and people upon the passage of legislation for which so much has been claimed by the President and labor leaders. In striking contrast to the reception given the new law is the praise bestowed upon Mr. Hughes for his denunciation of the President and Congress for the betrayal of arbitration under the pressure of the great strike threat. Regardless of consequences or votes, the Republican candidate attacked the new "American spirit" which demands legislation in advance of public sentiment and tore to shreds the flimsy structure upon which Mr. Wilson based his position as embraced in the phrase, "the sanctification of society." Mr. Hughes was never solicitous concerning the sanction of society whenever such sanction conflicted with fundamental principles. As governor he vetoed the two cent fare bill and the equal pay for teachers bill while his message against ratification of the income tax amendment is also remembered as an instance where the executive could have won popularity in certain quarters. But that is not Hughes's way. The recitade which has marked his record as a public servant is again exemplified in his spirited denunciation of the President's policy of railroading Congress. And Mr. Hughes's attitude possesses a characteristic consistency that is at once recognized by the great mass of the American people.

It is pleasant to aid in restoring the reputation of a good and industrious woman who for centuries has remained under an unjust accusation. It is written in the book of Samuel the Judge.

Jonathan, Saul's son, had a son that was lame of his feet. He was five years old when the tidings came of Saul and Jonathan out of Jezreel, and his nurse took him up and fled; and it came to pass, as she made haste to flee, that he fell, and became lame. And his name was Mephibosheth. The lameness was permanent and so severe that many years later the victim referred to himself as "a dead dog." Now comes a writer in the North American Journal of Homeopathy, who declares that Mephibosheth was clearly affected by poliomyelitis. Medical science was at a low ebb then and the lameness was blamed on the poor nurse. The story that a five-year-old boy fell and lamed both legs or even that he had to be carried at all unless ill is incredible to anybody who knows small boys. The same authority intimates that similar injustice has been put upon nurses times innumerable. Happily, things have changed and women can now refute calumnies effectively.

Doubtless all of the so-called modern maladies are of ancient origin, and a skilled medical man might make an interesting book by bringing logic to bear upon certain passages of sacred and profane history. Anyone who reads the first chapter of the Acts of the Apostles carefully must arrive at the conclusion that the death of Judas the traitor was brought about by strangulated hernia, a malady never mentioned in ancient writings, but which must always have been more or less prevalent. Further on in the same book we find ourselves driven to the conclusion that Herod became a victim of trichinosis or hookworm or something very similar, and it is significant that the narrator expresses no surprise over the incident. Centuries ago men were harder drinkers than they are today, yet it is hard to find records of deaths from delirium tremens, which are still frequent. However, it is all but certain that Alexander the Great died from this fever. If the account given by Aristotle is to be trusted, the contradictory story that he was poisoned by cold water is not easy to believe. There is a hint here for somebody who would like to be the author of a "best seller."

Like MacJette is now included in the category of offenses recognized and punished by the Department of State. Critics of President Wilson whether at home or abroad should take warning from the fate met by Charles Edward Russell, Socialist author, in Paris, whose request for credentials necessary to visit Belgium was refused because of the fact that he had criticized our President in a letter to a Paris newspaper. A long-earred charge d'affaires in the American embassy at Paris assumed responsibility for this un-American curtailment of privileges in the way of revenge. We hold no brief for Mr. Russell nor for his Socialist theories. Nevertheless, he is in France in his capacity as a journalist, and, no matter what he writes, whether in praise or blame, this country's official representatives are the last persons in the world who should attempt any restriction or privileges when the same are not abused. There are enough critics of the President this side of the Atlantic to make the imposition of penalties a busy affair if legitimate criticism is to be defined as lese majeste and classed with high crimes and misdemeanors against the Government. Nothing quite so asinine as this Parisian contretemps has been pulled off in a long time, even by the Wilson administration.

"FOR THE FOUR BOYS."

Mrs. MacMillan Appeals for an Especially Worthy Case.

Last winter a man died in Kingston of typhoid fever. He left a widow and four little boys, the oldest ten years old.

To keep these children out of an institution and at home with their mother is a problem with which the Social Service Bureau is wrestling. The city is giving the woman some assistance, and she can do a little work, although she is handicapped on account of the children being so young and needing her care.

This case would come under the provisions of the Child Welfare Law, popularly known as the "widow's pension bill," provided our board of supervisors would appropriate money for this purpose, which they have not as yet done.

If a few few generous people in Kingston will contribute enough to pay this little woman's rent, we can get her through the winter very comfortably. This will mean that her four boys will have a home and a good mother's care, which is more to these little ones than mere food and clothing which an institution would provide.

Contributions sent to me and marked "For the four boys" will be used for this case only and will be gratefully appreciated.

KRUNVILLE.

Krumville, Sept. 7.—Communion services were held in the Krumville Reformed Church Sunday morning. Miss Anna Merrihew united with the church and little Mabel Davis was baptized.

The Rev. T. A. Beekman left Sunday afternoon, after services in the Lyonsville Church to visit friends in Peura Bush, N. Y., and attend the reunion held in the Jerusalem Church. His son Warren, who has been spending a week with him, and daughter Florence, who spent the summer with him, accompanied him to Peura Bush. His son expects to return to school in New Jersey and his daughter expects to accompany her aunt and uncle on a trip out west and stop a week at Macinaw Island, Michigan, and spend a few days with friends and relatives at Chicago, Ill.

Quite a number from this place spent Tuesday in Kingston, attending to their damage suits.

Miss Florence Beckman and Miss Elitha Lyons were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Mary DuBois Saturday afternoon and evening.

The people of this place were greatly shocked last Monday to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. John Barrieger. The funeral was held in the Krumville Church, where she had been a very active member for many years. She is survived by her husband and three children, father, mother, two sisters and four brothers, and a great many friends. Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merrihew and children spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Merrihew.

Mrs. Joanna Van Kleeck and Miss Elitha Lyons spent Monday afternoon and evening with Mrs. Benjamin Davis.

Alex. Embree of Schenectady, spent Sunday and Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lyons. He was accompanied home by Chester Lyons who is to try for work in the U. S. G. works at that place.

Elmer Davis and Elmer Christiana first rehearsed several times and then acted their parts again for the camera. The managers and directors were well pleased with the entire play and will continue until the end of the week. The series of the M. & M. Motion Picture Company in New York City and the first public presentation will be on Monday, September 18, at the Orpheum theater where the picture will be shown for a week, together with other features.

LITTLE LAUREN.

"De man dat tells all he knows," said Uncle Eben, "ain't high as bad as de one who can't stop dat, but keeps on tellin'."—Washington Star.

What Then?

Various alterations had been made in the interior of a church in Scotland, and the minister made a tour of inspection. "What do you think of the improvements, Thomas?" he asked the pew-opener. "Improvements!" exclaimed Thomas in disdain. "There're no improvements at all. Whaur are ye gaun tae put the folks?" "Oh," said the minister, "we have abundance of room, Thomas, considering the size of the congregation." "That's a very weel the noo," replied the pew-opener, "but what will we dae when we get a popular minister?"—Rochester Times.

Giving Him Confidence.

It was his first campaign, his first political speech even. Although the county committee had sent him into a rural district to try out his oratorical wings, he was encouraged by the warm welcome of the local committee and the elaborate preparations for the meeting that were evident on all sides. There was even a band that played on the stand in the public square for half an hour before the speech. Finally the great moment arrived. The chairman stepped to the platform rail and addressed the crowd.

"Fellow citizens," he said, "we have with us today a young man who is destined to make his mark in the ranks of our party. He comes to tell us of the burning issues that confront us, and his fame as an orator has preceded him. He will now address you, and when he has finished the band will call you together again."—Philadelphia Ledger.

She'd Teach Her Grammar.

A Pike county teacher who asked a girl to purchase a grammar received the following note from the little girl's mother: "I do not desire that my Matty engage in grammar, and I prefer her to engage in more useful studies and can learn her to write and speak proper myself. I went through two grammars and can't say as they did me no good. I prefer Matty to engage in German and drawing and vocal music on the piano."—Florida Times-Union.

Not So Bad.

Jennie, the colored maid, arrived one morning with her head swathed in bandages—the result of an argument with her hot-tempered spouse, relates Life. "Jennie," said the mistress, "your husband treats you outrageously. Why don't you leave him?" "Well, I don't 'zackly want to leave him." "Hasn't he dragged you the length of the room by your hair?" "He has done dat." "Hasn't he choked you into insensibility?" "Yas'm, he has choked me." "And now doesn't he threaten to split your head with an ax?" "Yas'h, he has done all dat," agreed Jennie, "but he ain' done nothin' yet so bad I couldn't live wid him."

Truthful Sentry.

When young Farmer Giles left the happy homestead and plowed fields to join the army there was not a prouder man in the land. The first time he was doing sentry duty the officer of the guard came by and called upon him to give up his orders.

"Orders!" shouted Giles. "Give up my orders?"

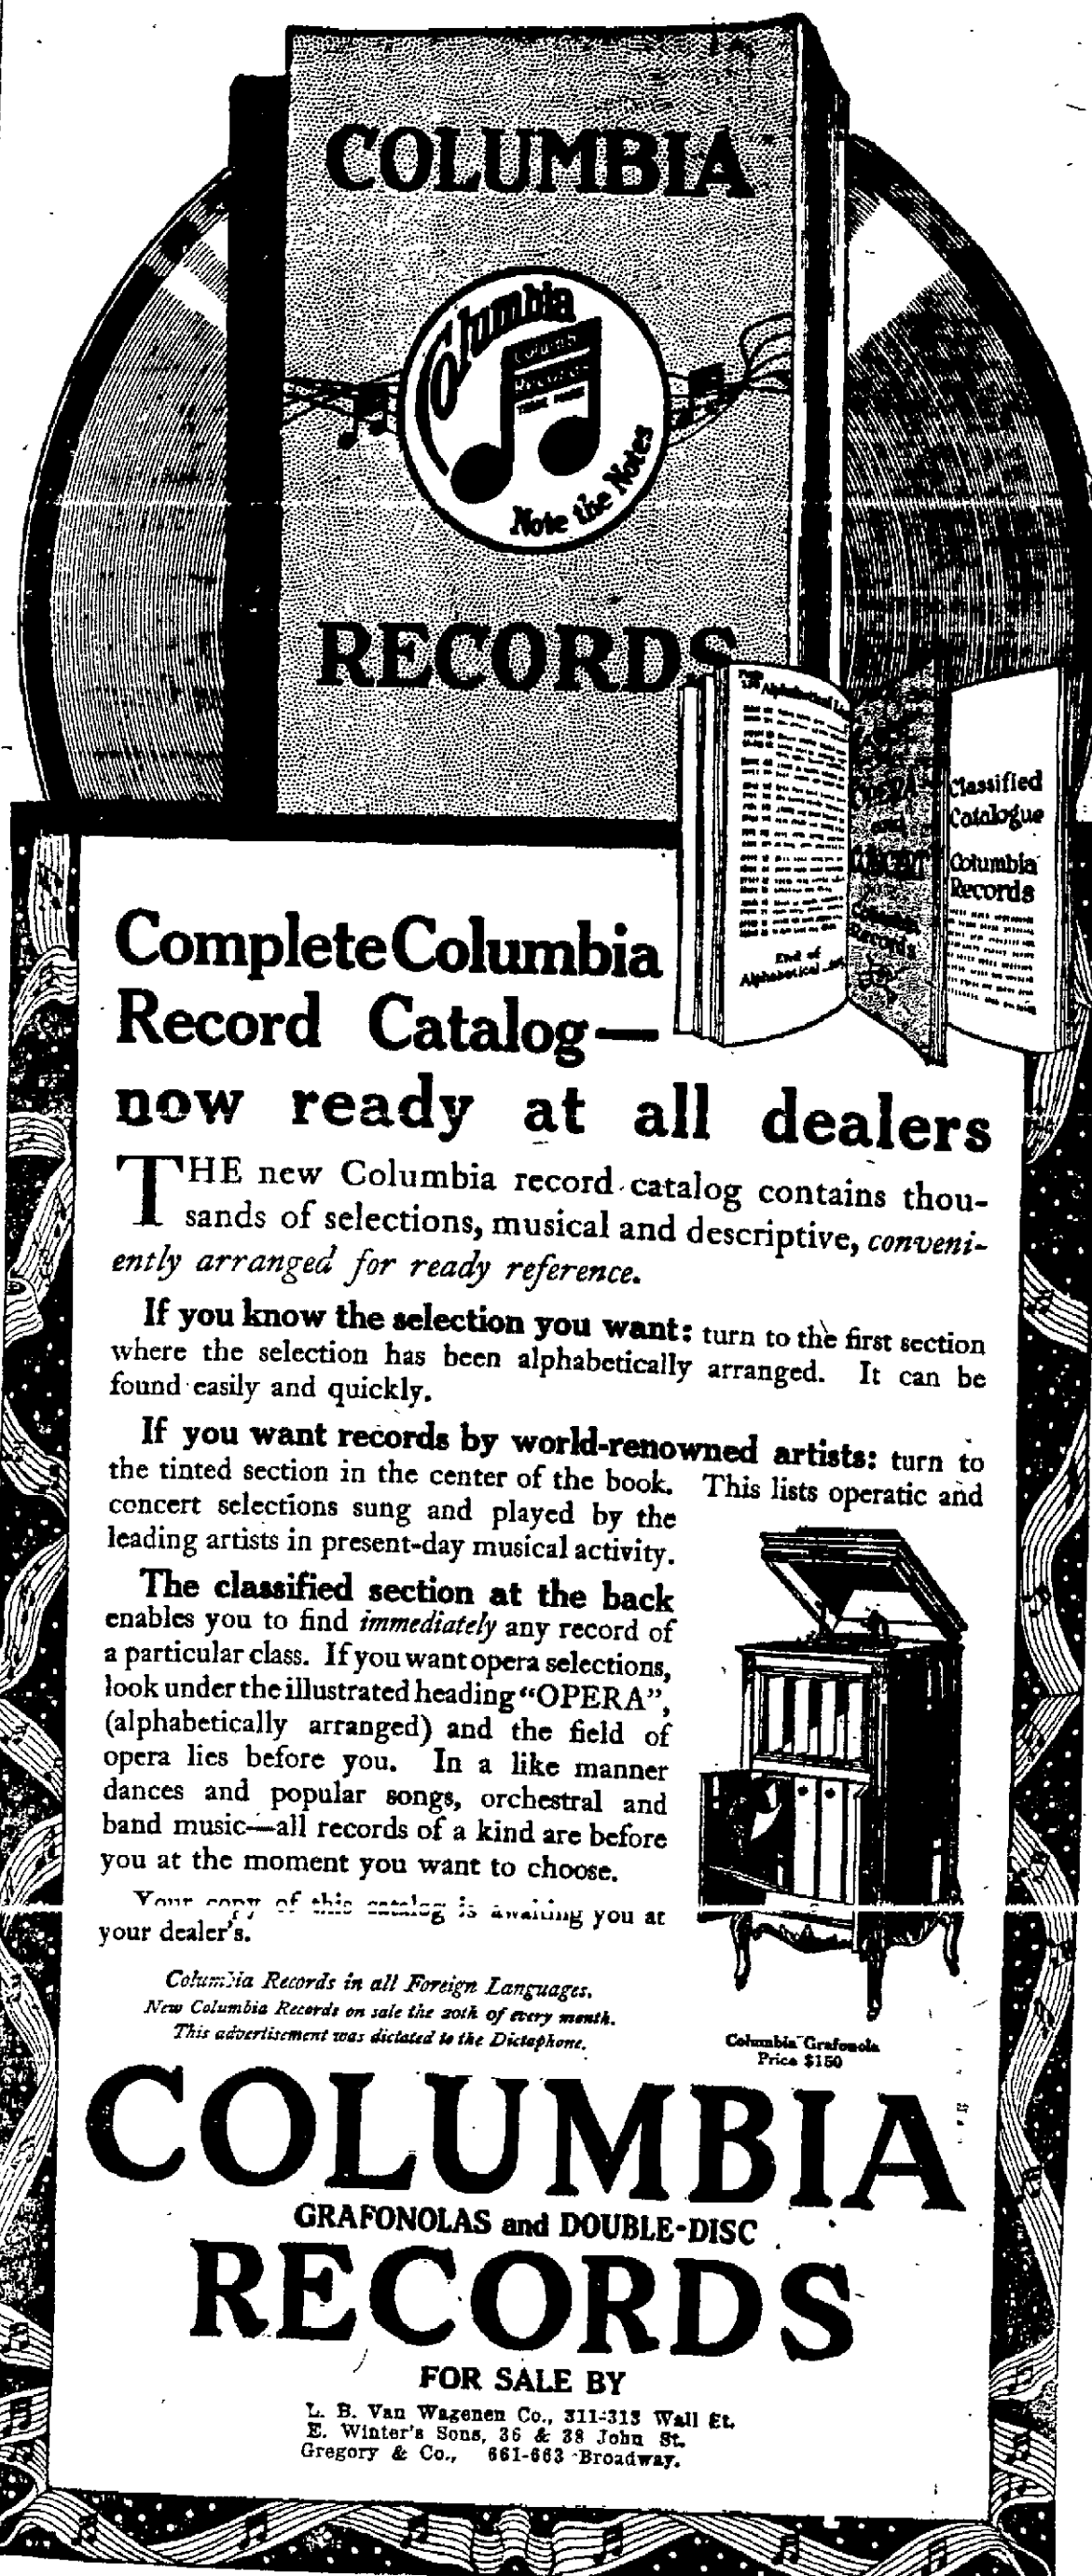

"Yes, certainly. What are you here for?" demanded the officer sharply.

"Oh, I'm here to walk up and down, stand at attention, wink at the girls, look after Sergeant Murphy's bit of garden and see that nobody pinches his spades; also to see you ain't about when they fetch beer for the guard room prisoners, and should you come on the scene to—"

"But the officer had completely collapsed.—Exchange.

Kingston in Movies.

"A Romance of Kingston" is the title of a moving picture play which is being staged in Kingston and ten local scenes were taken on Wednesday afternoon and on the steps of the Kingston Savings Bank on Wall street, where the participants were first rehearsed several times and then acted their parts again for the camera. The managers and directors were well pleased with the entire play and will continue until the end of the week. The series of the M. & M. Motion Picture Company in New York City and the first public presentation will be on Monday, September 18, at the Orpheum theater where the picture will be shown for a week, together with other features.

RECORDS

Complete Columbia Record Catalog—now ready at all dealers

THE new Columbia record catalog contains thousands of selections, musical and descriptive, conveniently arranged for ready reference.

If you know the selection you want: turn to the first section where the selection has been alphabetically arranged. It can be found easily and quickly.

If you want records by world-renowned artists: turn to the tinted section in the center of the book. This lists operatic and concert selections sung and played by the leading artists in present-day musical activity.

The classified section at the back enables you to find immediately any record of a particular class. If you want opera selections, look under the illustrated heading "OPERA", (alphabetically arranged) and the field of opera lies before you. In a like manner dances and popular songs, orchestral and band music—all records of a kind are before you at the moment you want to choose.

Your copy of this catalog is awaiting you at your dealer's.

DARLING AWARDED CONTRACT BY B.P.W.

He Bid $1,070 to Supply Pipe For Cornell Street Storm Water Sewer—City to Build Sewer.

A special meeting of the board of public works was held on Wednesday afternoon at the city hall for the purpose of opening sealed bids for sewer pipe to build the storm water sewer on Cornell street, from Smith avenue to Foxhall avenue. The specifications called for 1,258 lineal feet of 24 inch pipe; 456 lineal feet of 10 inch pipe; 8 lineal feet of 10 inch split pipe; thirteen 10 inch running traps, and forty 10 inch by 6 inch Y's.

Five bids were received, the lowest being that of Walter S. Darling of $1,070, and the contract for supplying this pipe was awarded to him. Under the contract the pipe must be delivered on the job. The work of building the sewer will be done under the direction of Superintendent Van Keuren of the board of public works. As soon as the pipe is received the work will be started. The board is anxious to complete the building of this sewer before cold weather sets in.

The sealed bids opened at the meeting were as follows:
David Gill, Jr. $1,139.00
Richard Tappen $1,131.83
Brown & Dressel $1,147.00
Canfield Supply Co. $1,129.34
Walter S. Darling $1,070.00
There being no other business to be brought before the meeting an adjournment was taken.

RECALLING OLD TIMES.

Expatriated Kingstonians Compare Notes on Former Days.

Former Kingstonians who live in New York get together occasionally and devote whole evenings to discussing Kingston of the long ago and Kingston of the present.

"I remember," said the oldest of the crowd, who is not yet fifty, "when the old Eagle Hotel burned. At that time across the street from the Eagle was Osterhout's coal yard. Where the Kirkland now stands Casey Buhans and Tite Felten had a coal and lumber yard and down on the corner where Dr. Chamber's house is was a lumber yard. That was quite a while ago and at that time on the Burgevin corner at Fair and Main streets was the first market which was run by 'Bob' Decatur, and the boys even before that used to go in Billy Hamlin's store."

"Then, along about that time over on John street was Tom Johnson's meat market, where Brinnier & Canfield's law office is at present located. It is quite a good many years ago when Nolse Souser had a fish market there and across the street was Kelland's saloon, where the murder of Ted Kelland occurred. John Davis, who was lame, was the proprietor of the school in those days and Judge Betts, and Jared Barthe were each principal of the school."

"What changes have come over the section on Wall street at St. James. The Johnston flats now stand where the old stone house stood. Across on the other corner was Willis and Barnhart's coal yard. The old building still stands on the opposite corner where Lucas had a store, and up toward Green street stood the old slaughter house of Tom Johnson. Lounsbury's house on the corner of St. James and Wall, quite a while ago was torn down to make room for a fine building and along that whole block toward Fair, where Joe Middaugh used to live in the little house back from the street, the residences have taken the place. The corner at St. James and Wall in the days gone by used to be known as the 'Four corners of hell' and for a time the title was deserved, due to the pranks of the boys getting on the roof of the old shed over Louise Reese's shop, dropping coals attached to strings when people were passing along, causing them to suspect that money had dropped from their purses. The old willow tree in the rear of Williams' yard at the head of St. James street contains the initials of Len Crouch, Charlie Reynolds, 'Bill' Lucas, Young Warren, Chipp in those days, Ollie Woodie, Dan Williams, 'Bill' Spencer, and a great many others, and all of whom added their little mite to keeping up the reputation of the corner.

"Palen's lumber yard and mill, before it moved to the corner of Pine and St. James street, was across the street from Plough's blacksmith shop on Wall street and in the rear of it on Linderman avenue was Wilmet's wood yard. All the boys had their turns at keeping flies off the horses while being shod in the blacksmith shop and all used to get in behind the horses in Palen's yard, when the power to run the planers and saws was obtained by the horses pulling the big driving shaft."

"It isn't so many years ago when Charlie Kerr had a bindery on Wall street and Hank Winne ran the hotel, opposite the court house, and when the uptown Freeman and Journal office was on Wall street. The Stuyvesant Hotel now stands where the old stone house stood and on the corner of Fair and John the late John T. Bond had a jewelry and watch making store, Charlie Dunn had a cigar store, which was later occupied as The Freeman office, and the Methodist Church, with its steps on both sides of the entrance, with the parsonage on the corner, stood where the beautiful edifice now stands on the corner of Fair and Pearl streets. It is of comparative recent date that the changes have taken place by the beautiful property now belonging to St. Joseph's parish. Poole & Luther's marble yard on Wall street was quite a few years ago and Billy VanBuren's meat market was doing business at that time on the property now occupied by Everett Fowler. In those days, say twenty-five or thirty years ago, Washington avenue did not contain many houses, not over a dozen."

LYONSVILLE.

Lyonville, Sept. 7.—James H. Christiana and family entertained relatives over the week end from El-lenville.

Jacob H. Barley has erected a new silo on his farm. Frank Davis of Samsenville helped him with the carpenter work.

Quite a number of men from this place have employment on the Ashokan dam.

A number from this place attended the funeral of Mrs. John Barringer at Krumville.

Garry Trowbridge spent the week end at the home of relatives at Napanoch.

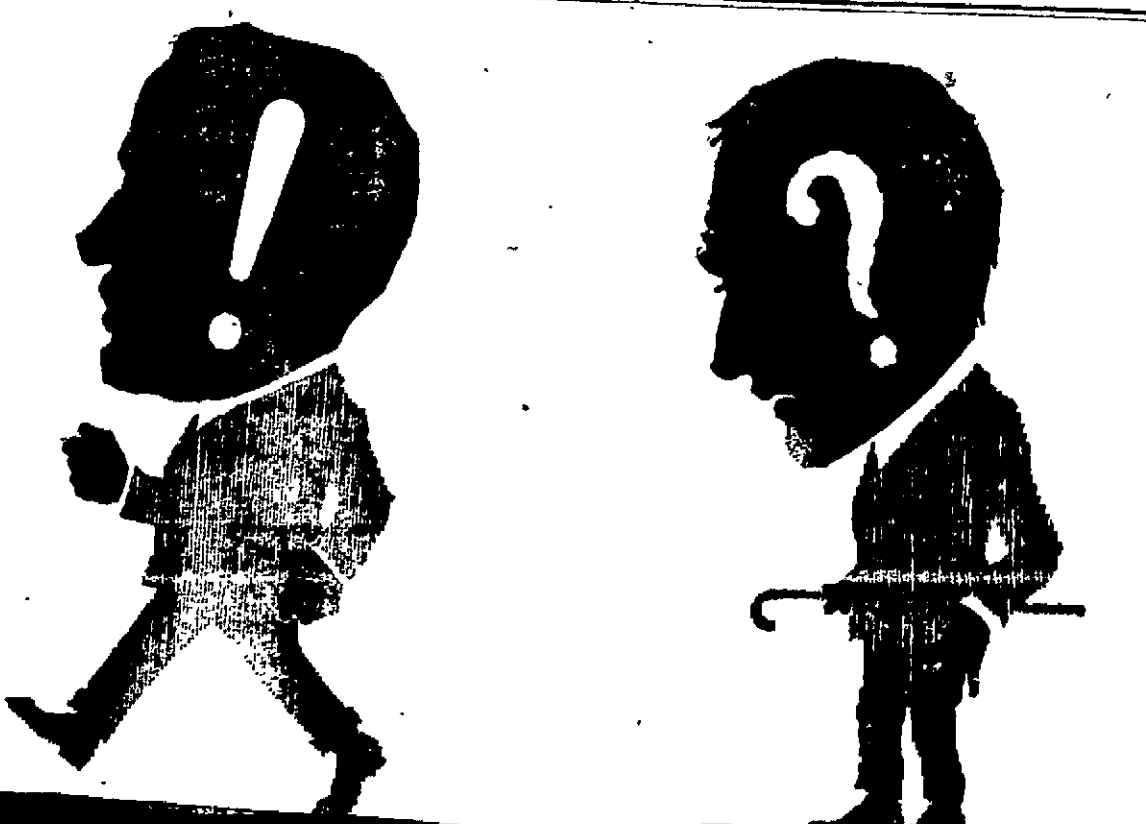

Mrs. Alexander is entertaining some of her relatives.

Some of the farmers have commenced to plow. All say "it is pretty dry."

County Treasurer Snyder as appraiser under the taxable transfer act has filed his report of appraisal of the estate of John Crowley of Saugerties. The personal property amounts to $1,710.11; the real estate is valued at $12,850; the debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $10,860.75, leaving a net estate of $3,699.36, which is exempt from tax. Catherine Crowley, the administratrix, was represented by Brinnier & Canfield; Joseph H. Vandervliet appeared for the state comptroller.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Mary Tobias of the town of Shawangunk has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court. To her daughter, Kate, wife of Albert Kidd, the testatrix devises her house and lot at the corner of Church and Bridge streets, Wallkill, and also certain personal belongings, furniture and silverware. One-half of the balance of the estate is given to Miss Kidd and the other half is to be divided among Warren Tobias, Hasbrouck Tobias and Elizabeth Tobias, children of Ira Tobias, a son Thomas J. Deyo and Henry R. DeWitt are appointed executors. The will was executed September 9, 1910, and witnessed by the Rev. D. G. Verwey and Warren V. Deyo, both of Wallkill. The value of the real estate is $1,200 and the personal property amounts to $150. Henry R. DeWitt appeared for the executors.

The will of Mary Gurry of this city was filed and a citation for its probate was issued returnable October 17. The testatrix directs the executor to sell her property and from the proceeds to pay $100 to Ruth Grimes, daughter of John Grimes of this city; $250 each to her granddaughters, Patricia Temple and Thomas Temple, of New York city; $500 to her niece, Mary Leahy, wife of James Leahy of Buffalo; $200 to her grandniece, Catherine Rigney, of Hoboken, N. J., and the balance of the estate, amounting to $1,800, is given to Joseph A. Shepard of this city. Patrick Temple is appointed executor. The will was executed October 8, 1913, and witnessed by Christopher A. Murray and Charles McMillan, both of Kingston. The value of the real estate is $3,000 and the personal property amounts to $600. Christopher A. Murray appeared for the executor.

Letters of administration on the estate of Eliza White of Saugerties were issued to her daughter, Susan White Anderson. The value of the personal property is $545.88 and there is no real estate. George F. Kaufman appeared for the administratrix.

FLATBUSH.

Flatbush, Sept. 7.—Miss Mary Osterhout spent the week end and Labor Day as the guest of Miss Anna Snyder at Katrine.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Long of Zeon were Sunday guests at the home of Chester Pearson.

Mrs. Frank Osterhout, who has been ill, is around again. Harry Van Gansbeck of Kingston was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Raymond Osterhout, for a few days last week.

Mr. Nelson spent Sunday and Labor Day with his family here.

The Sunday school was opened last Sunday with a small attendance of the older scholars.

As far as it is known now the day school will open the first of October.

The Fen-der-ack-a-meek Camp Fire Girls with invited guests held a picnic at Glenrie Falls on Thursday afternoon. A most enjoyable time was had. They cooked their supper over the "camp fire" with much fun and success and all enjoyed the good things when served.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burhans took a trip to New York last week.

Preaching services Sunday morning at the usual hour. A minister from Tarrytown is expected to fill the pulpit.

Miss Rachel Decker of Kingston was the guest of Miss Rachel Osterhout last week.

Mr. Buck of Poughkeepsie visited his sister, Mrs. Edmund Osterhout, on Labor Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Shipman spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Streeter in Kingston.

Mrs. Ben Turck of Weehawken is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hornbeck.

Keeping Premises Clear of Ants. The bureau of entomology says that if the housewife would get rid of the ants that bother her, the first and most important thing for her to do is to keep all her food supplies, especially sugar and other sweets, in light metal containers. It is probable that the children see or about should be promptly secured up.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Sept. 7.—September is an important month in the home life of the whole nation, for it is the month the schools as a rule open, and children are enrolled to be educated for life and its needs, and it is also an important time for church activities to be thought of, and last Friday the club women met at the M. E. Church parlor for their usual business and social meeting. Mrs. Charles DuBois, Mrs. Daniel Kurtz, Mrs. Harry Maynard and Miss Bessie DuBois were the hostesses of the afternoon. They were very cordial and made the members feel perfectly at ease. The president, Mrs. R. H. Decker, presided and gave all a cordial welcome and business was taken up, although nothing new was thought of on account of the strict quarantine as yet, but all reports were satisfactory and every one present was satisfied with results, and the social feature was one that occupied quite some time, and everyone was given an opportunity for free expression upon various matters associated with club life. The discussions were of peculiar interest, both because of helpful ideas advanced and the free flow of extemporaneous speech. The ladies who were the hostesses certainly served all with dainty refreshments, and they were appreciated greatly. It was decided that the ladies bring their canned fruit, to send to the Desconex home at the next meeting, the first Friday in October, at the church. The time for departure came all too soon, but all left in a very happy frame of mind, thinking of the future meetings, and expressions of gratitude were given the four ladies for their hospitality, which ended a pleasant afternoon for the club members.

Friday evening of this week the Highland Band will give another of their concerts which the people of the village enjoy, but instead of holding them on the village square as has been in the papers, we would state they are held on the Methodist Church lawn, where they have electric lights put up, giving them sufficient light for their music, and the people congregate on the lawn, church steps and along the streets in autos. This makes an ideal spot for their concerts, being in the center of the village and they have fine attendance to every one of them.

We met Mr. and Mrs. Brownell from Poughkeepsie here Monday. They are looking fine. They were residents here at one time.

Miss Florence LeFevre of Bogota, N. J. was a visitor in town Labor Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Godney of Milton avenue had friends from Brooklyn this week as guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Devo of New York were in this place Monday, calling on friends and relatives.

Mrs. Harry Schumaker of Brooklyn is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hopper, on Vineyard avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harcourt entertained their son from Brooklyn recently. It seems like old times to see Matthew around here.

Rev. I. C. Goldington, pastor of the M. E. Church, has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent at Ocean Grove, where he rested and attended the services of the great Evangelist, Billy Sunday. He enjoyed it more than he can tell. He will now be ready to conduct the services in his church and all his congregation and many friends gladly welcome his return.

Mrs. Cornelia Merritt and Miss Carrie Merritt of Brooklyn are guests of Captain and Mrs. R. H. Decker, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Maynard spent some time in New York city this week.

Mrs. Baldwin of Maple avenue is in New York for a few days this week.

Mrs. Reuben H. Decker was a shopper in Poughkeepsie Thursday. Pomona Grange held a sort of convention at Stone Ridge last Friday. Highland Grange was represented by Principal E. A. Marsh and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Abram Wilcox. They claim they received much information in Grange affairs. They enjoyed the trip there, also the social, as well as the business part of it.

Miss Miller and her gentleman friend from New York city, were week end and Labor Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Atkins at their home on Wilcox avenue. Miss Miller is a sister of Mrs. Atkins. They all enjoyed an outing Labor Day out of town and had a delightful time.

Clifford Terpening, Capt. and Mrs. Reuben H. Decker and Miss B. Dimsey motored to Staatsburgh Sunday and visited relatives of Mrs. Decker.

There was a good sized crowd on the M. E. Church lawn and on the street and in autos to listen to the music by Highland Band last Friday evening. The music was very good. A collection was taken up among the people and over twenty dollars realized.

Rev. E. A. Bray of New York city delivered two very fine sermons last Sunday from the M. E. Church pulpit and Miss Josephine Wing was the soloist.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wilcox entertained for week end and Labor Day, the Misses Mary and Clara Carpenter of Poughkeepsie, sisters of Mrs. Wilcox.

Miss Climp of New York was a visitor last week at the home of Andrew Taylor.

Another man in this place has invested some of his spare change in the purchase of a seven passenger Hudson automobile. Lew Thorne is the happy person, and we presume, he will just get out with that car and treat your friends to some fine trips.

Sam Parham of this place believes in partnership and this time it is a woman in the deal. They will start out on September 14th, on the matrimonial snip. Friends offer congratulations.

A new case of infantile paralysis is out at Lloyd. A young man 17 years old was sick only one day and passed away. He was from New York city and boarded at Berrian's. It seems very sad and the prospects for the future does not seem to be at all bright.

George Cornell of White street visited relatives in Clintondale recently.

Mrs. E. Harrington of this place was a guest of friends at Clintondale last week. She resided there before making Highland her home.

Miss Bertha Weissmiller has been making some improvements to her house on Vineyard avenue.

Mr. Kipp of Church street was in Clintondale recently on business.

Mrs. C. J. Elting and Mrs. J. R. Seaman have returned from Asbury Park and Ocean Grove. They enjoyed hearing Billy Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Van Wert of Pearl River, N. J., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Wert on Labor Day at their home on Maple avenue, Highland.

Miss Rose and Bessie Keller of Kingston were visitors over Labor Day with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller on Maple avenue.

On Labor Day many of the boarders from the Whitley house took their departure from country life. All who have been there have certainly had a jubilant time. They have a number of guests yet.

Stephen Ward, who has a fine position in Pennsylvania, has spent two weeks' vacation at his home here with his mother, Mrs. Emma Brundage. He is well pleased with his work in Pennsylvania and likes it there very much.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lent have had as their guests the past week Rev. and Mrs. D. G. Lawson from Livingston Manor, Sullivan county.

Parker Barnum and George Kennedy of New York city were week end and Labor Day guests of Miss Anna Warring on Grand street.

Garrett DuBois of Bayonne, N. J., died at Milton last week at the home of his son, Alvah. These people a few years ago resided in this place and lived on Washington avenue and were attendants at the M. E. Church.

Funeral services were held last Saturday from the home of Alvah DuBois at Milton. Interment was in Highland Cemetery.

The food sale held by the people of St. Augustine's Church last Saturday afternoon was one worth speaking of as they realized one hundred and fifty dollars. Besides the food they had on sale, fancy and domestic articles. There has been no entertainments of any sort for a long time and nothing for the churches and we think people were glad to get out. We hope the epidemic will abate and people get back to the old time schedule, for it seems strange to have the churches and Sunday schools closed and see the children all remain on their own yards; but it is always best to be on the safe side. Be sure you're right then go ahead. We trust to better times later on.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Aldrich, Mrs. Vincent Jordan, Mrs. Daniel Kurtz and Mrs. George Davis of this place motored to Kingston Wednesday and attended the convention of Daughters of America. It was a very interesting meeting and a vast amount of business was transacted. These people were delegates. There was a very large attendance from many places and the reports from officers and different councils were interesting and to a great extent encouraging.

The election of officers also was an evidence.

Mrs. William Wilcox, who resides in Baltimore and has been spending her vacation with her husband, the Rev. William Wilcox, and son, in Freedom Plains, has been in this place for a visit with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. G. S. LaMoree; also with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wilcox, the parents of her husband. She will soon leave for the south. Her husband went last week to resume his ministerial duties. They are well pleased with the south and the people there.

A few from this place attended a concert given at New Paltz recently.

Porter Lacey of this place, who now has a position at Lyons, N. Y., spent the week end and Labor Day with his mother and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. William Feeter, Sr., have had as their guest recently Mrs. Irving Devo of Kingston, a sister of Mrs. Feeter.

"Dumping."

"Dumping" is a word of English origin designating a commercial practice which consists of establishing for one and the same product two scales of prices, viz., a relatively high price for the home market, and lower prices, variable according to circumstances and in many cases lower than the cost of production, for foreign markets. Paul Barre in La Nature, Paris.

Individual Drinking Cups.

The day of the common drinking cup is about past. However, there are some places which persist in the practice. One dipper or cup to serve the entire student body is the reason why so many colds and other diseases are so easily transmitted among school children. Individual drinking cups ought to be insisted upon in all of our school work.—The Progressive Farmer.

Mr. Neibore? Neibore—Yes; I did, ma'am. Your jewels are in sack. I saw them swimming in the river."—Boston Transcript.

Always Pay for Disobedience.

Disobedience is economy. Disobedience, extravagance. He who disobeys the laws of nature has a doctor bill to pay. He who disobeys the laws of his country has a lawyer's bill to pay.

TRIED A DOUBLE-CROSS

One Play Manager Stallings Couldn't Deceit Out.

Two On, Two Out, Hap Myers Bunted, but Couldn't Get Away With It—Easily Thrown Out and Braves Lost Game.

The score was 2 to 2 against the Braves.

This was in a game played in Boston in the summer of 1915. It was the ninth inning. Two men were out and the Braves had a man on first and second.

"Hap" Myers, the lanky Boston first sacker, walked to the plate. A long hit would either tie the score or win the game. "Hap" let the first one pass—and bunted the second. He was thrown out by at least ten feet, and the game was over. The Braves had lost.

Myers in Terror.

"Hap" in terror over a possible rebuke from Manager George Stallings, sneaked into the clubhouse. Stallings was there, enshrouded in deepest gloom. Baseball never knew a harder loser than Stallings. But Stallings never said a word to Myers then, and Myers ducked out of the clubhouse and went home thinking Stallings had overlooked the bunt-out.

But Stallings hadn't. The next morning found Stallings at Myers' home. Myers had just gotten up.

"Hap," said Stallings, "I want to know why you bunted with two out and two on bases."

"Well, you see, boss," explained "Hap," "I thought I'd double-cross the other fellows."

"Double-cross 'em?" asked Stallings, puzzled.

Looking for a Hit.

"Yes. You see they were looking for me to hit it out, and I thought I'd catch 'em asleep with a bunt."

"Oh, that's it, eh?" said Stallings. "Thought you'd double-cross 'em, hey? Well, you didn't double-cross them, but you did double-cross me. I've spent the whole night trying to figure out why you bunted. That's the reason, eh—wanted to double-cross the other fellows?"

"Yes; that's it."

"Well, lemme tell you this, 'Hap' Myers," and Stallings poked a menacing finger at his big first baseman, "if you ever again try any of that double-crossing stuff there'll be a funeral in this particular neighborhood. Good day, double-crosser." And Stallings walked away.

HEAT WORRIES LEW McCARTY

Hot Weather Got Best of Dodgers' Catcher on Trip Through West—Brief Respite in Bath.

"I need to think I could stand the heat, but it certainly had me all in on a recent trip we made through the West," said Lew McCarty, backstop of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"When you went to bed you just lay there tossing around and sweating. Plunging in to the bathtub afforded only momentary relief, for just as soon as you got out and dried off the heat got you again."

"I thought Jeff Pfeffer would fade to a grease spot. But the boys stood it and we're all in good condition now and will go right ahead proving that any team which cuts into the world series will have to beat us to the goal."

BUG BIT INDIAN BOSS EARLY

President Dunn of Cleveland Always Cherished Ambition to Become Big League Owner.

The new owner of the Cleveland Indians, James C. Dunn, hails from a town made famous by that immortal pioneer of the national pastime, A. G. ("Pop") Assen of Marshalltown, Ia.

It was in the Iowa town that Dunn, who now weighs 240 and wears a No. 17 collar, got his start as a contractor. The son of a farmer, he began contracting on a shoestring when nineteen, and has amassed sufficient wampum to buy the Indians or any other old ball club he wants without missing the change.

Jim is forty-eight and married. He lives in Chicago. The baseball bug bit him when he was quite young.

"I was quite a fan as a kid," Dunn says, "but not much of a player. When a ball club was formed in Marshalltown I was made its president. Ever since I've been able to muster the cash I've had hopes of becoming a big-league owner."

Cobbler's Dozen.

In most countries thirteen is always spoken of as "the baker's dozen," but in Italy it is called "a cobbler's dozen." There is a tradition in that land that formerly there was a law compelling cobblers to put twelve nails around the edge of a boot heel, and that when nails were cheap a thirteenth nail was driven in the center for luck.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank J. Menke.)

New York, Sept. 7.—Who will explain the peculiar—yes, amazing—fact that not since 1910 has a western club won a pennant in the majors?

Seven seasons ago the Clubs hurried through the National and handed at the top. Their accomplishment ended the triumphs of the west. Five races have been fought—and finished—in each league since then. And the ten flags flutter in the east. The 1916 battling isn't over yet, but it looks to many as if two more banners of victory will be hoisted to the top of the Eastern flag poles.

No Western entry can win in the National this year. The battling has simmered down to a stretch-struggle between the Dodgers and the Braves, with the Phillies having an outside chance and with the Giants fairly certain of fourth position. And all are Easterners. The Western clubs have been outclassed from the start. The fight in the American is still an open one. The Red Sox are the choice, but the Tigers and Browns are thundering along. In that pair reposes the hope of the west. A bit farther to the rear are the Yankees, White Sox and Indians, but it seems that the trio is too far behind to have a real "lookin'." And if the battle has simmered down to a stretch-struggle among the Red Sox, Tigers and Browns—with the Easterners having the edge at this writing.

Easterners Not Chastest.

How can one account for the phenomena of continued Eastern supremacy? Some will say that the Eastern clubs always have had better talent. But that is not so. Others will offer the guess that it is because the Eastern clubs are richer and can buy needed stars in critical moments. But that hardly can be the answer, because the misfit Braves of 1914, and the patched-up Phillies of 1915, romped in ahead. And this year it looks somewhat like the cast-off Dodgers.

The Giants won the plays of 1911, 1912 and 1913 with a club that, on paper, did not show superior to the 1911 Cubs or the 1912 Cubs and Pirates. Yet they won. The 1914 Cardinals looked awfully good and they fought a game battle. But, near the end they faltered and they succumbed under the spell of the East.

The 1911 Tiger Crew was a wonder team—but it couldn't head the Athletics. In 1912 the best the West could do was a fourth with Chicago. The 1913 Indians were real ball players. It was a great team. But it couldn't win. Was there ever a better team on paper than the 1915 or 1916 White Sox? In each season it looked like the class—like a certainty. Yet its pennant dreams never came true. The 1915 Tigers flashed the greatest offensive work in baseball's history and an Eastern club won, flasher across the line an easy winner.

What Records Show.

Two tables follow. One covers the finish of each National League club since 1911; the other embraces the American League finishes. The figures show that the west not only has failed to land a single winner in five years its entries have slipped into second place only three times in ten.

East Always Had "Edge."

Delving into the musty sheets of history, one finds that the eastern clubs, since the inception of both leagues, have gathered the major portion of the first place glory. Of the 40 National League battles since 1876 the eastern clubs have won 25 against 15 for the westerners. In the American circuit the easterners have taken unto themselves ten of the eleven pennants. That makes 35 victories out of 55 for the east, or a grand percentage of 62.5 for the east against 37.5 for the west. The names of the pennant winning clubs and the year they won, follows:

National League Winners.

Boston ninepennants—1877, 1878, 1887, 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894, 1898, 1914.
New York, seven—1885, 1889, 1904, 1905, 1911, 1912, 1913.
Brooklyn, three—1890, 1899, 1900.
Baltimore, three—1894, 1895, 1908.

Providence, two—1879, 1884.

Philadelphia, one—1915.

Total for East 25.

Chicago, ten—1876, 1880, 1881, 1882, 1885, 1896, 1906, 1907, 1908, 1910.

Pittsburgh, four—1901, 1902, 1903, 1909.

Detroit, one—1887.

Total for West 15.

American League Winners.

Philadelphia, six—1902, 1905, 1910, 1911, 1913, 1914.

Boston, four—1902, 1910, 1912, 1915.

Total for East 10.

Chicago, three—1900, 1901, 1906.

Detroit, three—1907, 1908, 1909.

Total for West 6.

And in conclusion, we reiterate—Why the eastern superiority?

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

The Dodgers lost a golden opportunity yesterday. They were lucky to get away with one game. Benton picked both games for the Giants.

He got away with the first and lost a pitcher's battle with Marquard in a second.

The Tigers won from the Browns

because of Ty Cobb's daring base running in the tenth inning.

The other Hoosier experts—the White Sox—are also sucking close.

The great trio in each league will go at it again today.

The Pirates are playing championship ball a little late in the season.

They trimmed the Cardinals two games.

If rain doesn't interfere with hostilities in Boston and New York today the lead may change again.

WITTENBERG.

Wittenberg, Sept. 7.—Miss Ethel

M. Short of Kingston and A. P. Barclay of Amsterdam spent Sunday and Monday with Mr. and Mrs. S. L.

Short.

Mrs. Frank Johnson of Brooklyn has returned home, having spent her vacation with Mrs. Frank Happy.

The W. W. Society met with Mrs.

Lauretta Short on Wednesday afternoon.

S. L. Short motored to Pine Hill

on Sunday.

Mrs. Eltinge Simpkins and son,

LaMonte, of Shady called on friends in this place on Monday.

Epworth League Sunday evening at 7:30. Leaders, Mrs. W. R. Rusey,

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Shante motored to Kingston to visit relatives

on Sunday.

Several from this place attended the reunion at Boiceville on Labor

Day.

Miss Ethel M. Short is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Short.

COULDN'T UNDERSTAND IT.

Mr. Menchen Said He Did Not Know

Why He Was Arrested.

John Menchen, an aged man, was arraigned before Recorder Lang this morning on a charge of public intoxication. Mr. Menchen said he could not account for his being present in court, and when questioned as to how it happened said that Wednesday evening he was walking by the court house when he saw Mr. Jocelyn sitting on the steps. "How do you do

Mr. Jocelyn," said I, and he replied,

"How do you do, John." Then I walked up and sat down and talked with Mr. Jocelyn, who is a mighty fine man. After a while I asked him if I could stay all night, and he replied "Why sure John, if you like."

Then he took me in and gave me a bed, and I met a number of old friends. This morning I had my breakfast, and then the police wagon rolled up and I was put in, and here

I am. I didn't do anything." Mr.

Menchen said he had never been arrested before, and Recorder Lang discharged him.

EDDYVILLE.

Eddyville, Sept. 7.—Thomas

Way has accepted a very desirable position in Saratoga. We all wish him the very best success in this new work.

William McNamee, who has been home for a few days, has returned to Bridgeport, Conn., where he is em-
